INSURANCE · WHERE AI HELPS

From today's problems to AI-native work

THE PROBLEMS TODAY

01

Claim surges after a storm

A bad weekend floods the team with new claims, and policyholders wait days for a first call while staff sort the pile by hand.

02

Broker submissions stuck in inboxes

Underwriters spend hours re-keying emails and attachments, checking appetite and clearance before they can even look at the risk.

03

Suspicious patterns spotted too late

Repeat names, contractors or photos hide across hundreds of claim files, and the link is found only after the money has gone out.

WHERE AI CAN HELP

01	Claim intake and sorting	Read new claims, photos and notes, then route each one by urgency so the worst-hit customers hear back first.
02	Submission triage	Pull the key facts from broker emails and forms and check them against your appetite before an underwriter starts.
03	Fraud signals for review	Flag claims that share unusual links or details, with the reasons shown, so an investigator can decide.
04	Policyholder and broker assistant	Answer common questions on cover, documents and claim status from your own policy wording, at any hour.
05	Renewals and certificates	Prepare renewal packs, certificates and reminders so agents spend their time on advice, not paperwork.

FOR INSPIRATION

AI-native ideas to get you thinking

Examples only, to show what AI-native work can look like. They are not part of the package scope or a promise of what we will build; your POC is agreed with you.

The new-claims morning queue

TODAY

Handlers open every new claim in turn and guess which ones are most urgent.

AI-NATIVE

Handlers could start the day with claims already sorted by urgency, each with a short summary and the missing documents listed.

A broker submission read in minutes

TODAY

An underwriter copies details from a long email and attachments into the system.

AI-NATIVE

The underwriter could open a ready summary of the risk, with gaps and appetite questions flagged, and go straight to the decision.

Joining the dots on a storm-chaser pattern

TODAY

Investigators notice a repeat contractor only when someone happens to remember the name.

AI-NATIVE

An investigator could get a weekly list of claims sharing unusual links, with the evidence laid out, to review and decide on.
