LIFE SCIENCES · WHERE AI HELPS

From today's problems to AI-native work

THE PROBLEMS TODAY

01

Evidence spread across many systems

A freezer alarm or failed calibration touches samples, results and batches, and tracing the impact takes days.

02

Procedures that outrun training

Procedures change faster than training records, so staff may work to an old version without anyone noticing.

03

Slow batch and trial reviews

Quality reviews and trial oversight are pieced together from spreadsheets and emails, holding up release.

WHERE AI CAN HELP

01	Impact tracing in minutes	When something goes wrong, list the samples, results and batches it may affect, with the evidence.
02	Procedure and training check	Spot staff whose training is behind the latest procedure version before they start the work.
03	Document drafting help	Draft deviation reports, summaries and change notes for an expert to review and approve.
04	Lab knowledge assistant	Let scientists ask about methods, past experiments and procedures and get answers from your own records.
05	Batch review readiness	Pull the records a batch needs into one checklist and flag gaps before the quality review.

FOR INSPIRATION

AI-native ideas to get you thinking

Examples only, to show what AI-native work can look like. They are not part of the package scope or a promise of what we will build; your POC is agreed with you.

The freezer alarm, traced

TODAY

Staff dig through logs and sample sheets for hours to work out what a warm freezer affected.

AI-NATIVE

A list of affected samples and studies could appear within minutes of the alarm, for the team to check and act on.

The deviation report, first draft

TODAY

A scientist writes each deviation report from scratch after an incident.

AI-NATIVE

A first draft could be built from the logs, readings and notes, ready for the scientist and quality lead to correct.

The batch release checklist

TODAY

Quality staff collect records from several systems before a batch can be reviewed.

AI-NATIVE

A ready checklist could gather each record a batch needs and highlight what is missing or unusual.
